This list has been made to give parents a guide to what gifts may be appropriate for encouraging their child's fine motor and cognitive development through play. It does not replace an health professional assessment or intervention. The activities are also general in nature and are not compiled with your child's individual needs in mind. If you have specific queries please contact your child's therapist or teacher. Some toys listed are specific brands, this list does not mean to promote one brand over another, but to highlight the skills that can be developed from that game or similar. General ages have been recommended, however the appropriate age range for each toy should be checked by parents before purchase.
